

Feed the Need to Read!

Book Week 2012

Book Week 2012 was yet again another huge success in St. Paul's! Between book browsing time, Drop Everything and Read Time and visits to other classes to read stories, the children really did have their heads buried deep into books all week! The theme for Book Week this year was "A Food Feast - Feed the Need to Read!" Therefore as well as reading an abundance of books the children were also reminded of the importance of eating healthily! Fruit and vegetables could be seen in nearly every lunch box in the school! Well done guys, keep it up!!

Clifford the Dog dropped in to say hello to the Junior and Senior Infants boys and girls! There were hugs and high fives all round from Clifford. He even read us one of his stories and did a funny little dance!

On the last day of Book Week the children ditched their uniforms for various fancy dress costumes! We had characters from books, book covers and plenty of food walking around the corridors!

As a result of all the sales in books we now have over €4,000 to spend on books. This will go towards more books for the main library and to add to the libraries in the classrooms.

Thanks to everyone involved for helping make Book Week such a great success, especially to our fantastic Parents' Association who worked in the Fair all week!

Below are some pictures from the week, including our competition winners for either best costume or for winning their competitions for best picture / story / book report / book cover.
